Draft Text for Practice:

The tourism industry, also known as the travel industry, is linked to people traveling to other locations, either domestically or internationally, for leisure, social, or business purposes. It is closely connected to the hotel industry, the hospitality industry, and the transport industry. Much of it is based on keeping tourists happy, occupied, and equipped with the things they need during their time away from home. Sports tourism is one of the most significant sectors in tourism and tourism in general provides numerous advantages. Sports serve as a major attraction within the tourism industry and sports tourism is any form of travel where attending a sporting event is the primary motivation. This includes people who are going to spectate and people who are participating in the event. Sporting events can provide a major short-term boost to the economy. Examples of sports tourism include fans traveling to follow their favourite sports team, or people traveling to see a major event, such as the ICC T20 World Cup 2024 held in the US and the West Indies, the Olympic Games. Often, the presence of major events can attract thousands of visitors and additional investment in the area, leaving a positive legacy. Tourism offers a wide range of benefits, including economic benefits for countries attracting many visitors due to the money they spend not only on their actual stay but also on local businesses. It also provides many jobs for people working in the transport and hospitality industry, among others.
